

Yellow lady's slipper

Cypripède jaune

Cypridium parviflorum

There are 2 varieties of yellow lady's slipper in New Brunswick, both kinds are rare in the province. Habitats include moist to rich deciduous woodlands, old growth cedar forests, calcareous rocky river banks and cliffs. The yellow lady's-slipper is a native perennial found across Canada, flowering from May to July. The plant can cause a skin rash similar to the rash caused by poison-ivy. The small yellow lady 's slipper has a strong sweet fragrance.
